CIVIL AVIATION AUTHORITY OF SINGAPORE

Undeclared Dangerous Goods Found in Rig Spare Parts
Offered for Transport by Air

Singapore is a maritime hub with more than 150,000 vessels and rigs calling at our ports annually. Consequently, many organisations in Singapore, such as ship chandlers and freight forwarders, provide various services to shipping companies including facilitating the transport of ship spares to ocean-going vessels overseas. Since some ship spares may be classified as dangerous goods, staff of shippers and freight forwarders have to be attentive, identify hidden dangerous goods and ensure that they comply with the packing, marking, labeling and documentation requirements of the dangerous goods regulations when offering ship spares for transport by air.

In November 2022, a foreign air operator reported to CAAS that its security screening staff had detected aerosol spray cans in a general cargo consignment that had arrived from Singapore when screening cargo at the transiting station. Since there was no indication on the air waybill that its contents had dangerous goods, the consignment was withheld for further investigation. Subsequent verification with the freight forwarder in Singapore confirmed that the consignment contained flammable aerosols and chemical kits which were classified as dangerous goods and which did not comply with the dangerous goods regulations when it was offered for transport from Singapore.

Investigation by CAAS revealed that the freight forwarder had offered the consignment of goods for transport on behalf of its customer in the US. Some months earlier, the freight forwarder's customer had arranged for this consignment to be transported from the US to Singapore intending to deliver it to a rig docked here.

Unfortunately, the rig had sailed before the goods could be delivered hence, the customer requested that the freight forwarder arrange to transport the consignment intact back to the US by air.

Noting that the goods were transported to Singapore as a general cargo consignment and remained intact, the freight forwarder's staff declared the contents on the air waybill in a similarly manner without reviewing the items listed on the invoice and packing list. Had the staff reviewed the information, it would be apparent that the contents of the consignment contained dangerous goods.

To avoid contravening safety regulations in the transport of dangerous goods by air, staff of freight forwarders should diligently review the information in the shipper's invoice and packing list to verify that general cargo consignments do not contain any hidden dangerous goods. When in doubt, staff of freight forwarders should seek confirmation from the shipper on the dangerous goods classification of articles or substances in the consignment to avoid offering undeclared dangerous goods for transport by air. For offering undeclared dangerous goods for transport by air, a shipper or its agent may be given a fine not exceeding $100,000 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 5 years or both upon conviction.

Is Your Staff OK? 3 Ways Employers Can Promote Employee Mental Wellness

Findings from global professional services provider Mercer show that when employees go to work feeling stressed, their productivity drops by approximately 21%.

Employee mental wellness is important for businesses to thrive. If you're an employer thinking of promoting mental wellness at your company, here are three suggestions:

Acknowledge mental wellness as part of employee well-being

According to findings from MOM, only a third of companies surveyed shared that they have formal workplace wellness programmes. Leaders must acknowledge that employees' health is not just physical, but also mental. This can be translated to providing employees access to counselling as part of medical benefits.

Dell Technologies is one company making huge strides toward improving mental wellness for its employees. Their HR spokesperson shares, "Our vision is to create a culture of wellness, to help bring balance to our employees' lives and have Dell Technologies be a great place to work in."

Create a supportive environment in the workplace

Employers should strive to make the workplace a safe and trusting environment where employees aren't afraid to communicate the challenges they face in work and life.

Start with simple but effective steps – set up informal support networks like "buddy systems" that allow employees to provide mutual support, and schedule regular check-ins with employees to discuss work-related stress.

Dell Technologies also provides various tools and resources for team members to strengthen their wellness and enhance balance. Programs within the Dell Wellness Hub range from meditation to financial wellness, fitness, family balance, policies and practices supporting team members' flexible working patterns.

Make mental wellness part of the company's work culture

Promoting mental wellness can be incorporated seamlessly into your company's operations.

Beyond self-care resources and wellness activities, other benefits offered by Dell Technologies include the International Employee Assistance Program (EAP), which provides support and information on managing common life issues, such as depression, work conflicts, parenting and more, to the company's employees and their dependents. There are also leader support services – in-house consultations by HR consultants on leaders' concerns.

Warehouse Racking Safety

Unsafe warehouse racking and practices can compromise safety and result in unwanted workplace accidents. Always adopt good racking practices.

Unsafe Racking Practices

- ✗ Rusty storage rack in poor condition

- ✗ Wooden crate in poor condition
- ✗ Risk of stacked crate toppling

Safe Racking Practices

- ✓ Well-maintained storage rack that is regularly inspected

- ✓ Goods placed on pallet to facilitate easy movement
- ✓ Goods stretch-wrapped and strapped onto pallet to prevent toppling

SINGAPORE FOOD AGENCY

A fine for failure to arrange SFA Inspections, and selling imported food consignments prior to inspections

On 13 February 2023, Little Farm Pte Ltd, a licensed food importer, was fined $13,500 by the court for failure to arrange for inspection, examination and certification by SFA, as well as for selling the imported food consignments prior to inspections.

Little Farms Pte Ltd had imported consignments of assorted chilled lamb products and assorted seafood products in Oct 2020 and Jul 2022 respectively. On both occasions, the company failed to arrange for SFA to inspect, examine and certify the consignments and had proceeded to sell the products.

In Singapore, upon import of meat and fish products, importers must arrange for these products to be inspected, examined and certified by an authorised examiner before it is sold, distributed or exported. Meat or fish products which are found to be unfit for human consumption will be seized and disposed.

Offenders who fail to arrange for the meat and fish products to be inspected, examined and certified by an authorised examiner before it is sold or distributed, shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding $10,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months or to both. Offenders who had sold their meat consignments which had not been inspected are liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding $50,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years or to both and, in the case of a second or subsequent conviction, to a fine not exceeding $100,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 3 years.

CYBER SECURITY AGENCY OF SINGAPORE

Develop Cybersecurity Health Plans With Funding Support For Small-Medium Enterprises

The Cyber Security Agency of Singapore (CSA) will be launching a scheme to develop cybersecurity health plans with funding support for small-medium enterprises (SMEs). The scheme will see cybersecurity consultants take on the role of the SMEs' "Chief Information Security Officers" (CISO), akin to providing a CISO-as-a-Service (CISOaaS) to SMEs facing manpower constraints in hiring cybersecurity personnel. The scheme was announced by Mr Tan Kiat How, Senior Minister of State for the Ministry of Communications and Information (MCI) & Ministry of National Development, at MCI's Committee of Supply Debate on 28 February 2023.

CSA will provide funding support to SMEs by co-funding up to 70% of their costs for engaging cybersecurity consultancy services for the first year. The scope of services will be pre-defined, with an emphasis on baseline requirements to attain the Cyber Essentials mark, which in turn provides SMEs' partners and clients with greater assurance as they digitalise. The scheme is expected to launch in May 2023. More details on the eligibility criteria and application process will be made available progressively on CSA's website.

Straits Times Singapore's Fastest Growing Companies 2023

The Straits Times and Germany-based global research firm Statista had compiled a list of 100 companies which were ranked as Singapore's Fastest Growing Companies 2023.

The ranking, now in its fifth year, is based on the companies' markedly high revenue growth from 2018 to 2021. There were strict criteria – they had to be independent companies headquartered in Singapore with at least $150,000 of revenue generated in 2018, and $1.5 million in 2021.

For the 3rd consecutive year, Declarators Pte Ltd, a multiple award winning declaring agent, has achieved to be ranked in Straits Times Singapore's Fastest Growing Companies. Their position for 2023 is a respectable 37th.

It is a great honour to be ranked again and featured alongside with the big giants from various industries. Between the past three years, they had an absolute growth rate of 308.3%.
