NOTE

Dear SAAA Members, Readers and all,

Welcome to the fourth issue of SAAA "Perspectives" 2021 –

a newsletter aimed at providing you with the on-goings in our Aviation Industry.

2021 is finally drawing to a close and soon, we will be welcoming the New Year: 2022. As you are aware, meetings became predominantly virtual. Likewise, the means of hosting an event have changed to run in hybrid formats.

Co-organized with IATA, our Air Cargo Day 2021 came to fruition in resounding success as our very first hybrid event, of which physical attendees were very supportive to join us at Grand Mercure Singapore Roxy. They bore witness to our certification ceremony, of which our Association had been recognized as the first globally in achievement of the IATA
CBTA Excellence accreditation for Dangerous Goods Training.

This was followed by our SAAA AGM, which was hosted virtually. We thank you, our esteemed members, for being present to hear on the future of which our Association had paved a path for, in terms of training and the potential rewards for our members on the portal.

Overall, it had been a fruitful, challenging year, of which we have grown stronger as a community. We are grateful for the strong support you have given us and we will continue to strive ahead for the New Year: 2022. Happy New Year!

Thank you.

Warmest Regards,

Should Companies Hire Candidates with No Work Experience?

Employers may often hire based on past work experience or qualifications, but these may not be valid of a candidate's potential to do well. Experience doesn't equate to proficiency, because those with no work experience may have potential in other aspects.

They may not possess all the hard requirements of the position you want to fill, but they may have certain qualities and skills that make them a long-term fit.

1. They possess transferable skills

These skills can be applied across various job roles and requirements. This can include soft skills like effective communication, problem-solving, or project management.

2. They'll learn to be adaptable

Candidates with little to no experience are usually compelled to be flexible and often motivated to impact change. They are more likely to be receptive to future role conversions depending on organisational needs.

3. They bring fresh perspectives

Such candidates may be more willing to try new ways, as they're not constrained by previous practices or experience. They'll look at things from different perspectives and incorporate fresh approaches.

Government Events / News – CAAS

Information on CAAS Website to aid Shippers and Freight Forwarders in the Identification of Undeclared Dangerous Goods in General Cargo

CAAS receives reports of dangerous goods incidents on a regular basis. Annually, incidents involving shippers and freight forwarders offering undeclared dangerous goods make up the majority of all incidents reported to CAAS. Between Jan to Oct 2021, 11 incidents of undeclared dangerous goods offered for transport involving a total of 10 shippers and 10 freight forwarders were reported to CAAS. ICAO and IATA have also highlighted at international meetings and safety forums that airlines continue to be exposed to the safety risks of transporting undeclared dangerous goods as general cargo.

Shippers and freight forwarders play an important role in ensuring the safe transport of dangerous goods by air. To prevent undeclared dangerous goods from unintentionally being offered for transport as general cargo, shippers and freight forwarders should diligently identify hidden or undeclared dangerous goods in consignments of general cargo prior to offering such goods to airlines for transport on its aircraft.

To aid in the identification of undeclared / hidden dangerous goods, CAAS recently updated the dangerous goods information on its website to provide and explain the methods that shippers and freight forwarders may implement for this purpose. They include, but are not limited to:

1. Dangerous Goods Marks and Labels – Dangerous Goods marks and labels marked or affixed to the outer packages of goods may suggest that its contents are classified as dangerous goods.
2. Globally Harmonized System (GHS) Pictograms – Dangerous goods contained in packages may be identified by pictograms printed on the packaging that represent the hazardous characteristics of its contents.
3. Hidden Dangerous Goods List – This list shows the common descriptions of household items and commercial products that may contain dangerous goods.
4. Safety Data Sheet (SDS) – Such documents contain information on the classification of dangerous goods and detailed information on the hazardous characteristics of substances and some finished products such as lithium batteries.

We would like to encourage shippers and freight forwarders to visit our website for more information by assessing the following link on your web browser or by scanning the QR code with your mobile device. In addition, we strongly encourage freight forwarders to share this information with its service providers and customers.

Government Events / News – WSH Council

The Workplace Safety and Health (WSH) Council has launched its first Workplace Mental Well-being Campaign on 9 December 2021, as part of our National WSH Campaign, to remind people to take time to take care of their mental well-being. This Campaign supports the National Mental Well-being Campaign by the Health Promotion Board.

Employees are encouraged to reach out for support at work, while employers are encouraged to take action to improve their employees' well-being. The WSH Council has produced a Campaign Video, which shows how Fred, who is a "Cloud of Stress", manages to overcome his mental stress with the support of his co-workers and management. This video is a reminder to employers to take care of their employees, and to employees to take time to care for their health and well-being, and seek help at work. Watch the Campaign Video at <https://youtu.be/3DfgUdSNiCk>.

The WSH Council has also worked with the Institute for Human Resource Professionals and the Ministry of Manpower to produce "A Playbook on Workplace Mental Well-being", which includes step-by-step guides and templates on implementing various mental well-being initiatives at the workplace. Companies can check out the Playbook and other resources on www.wshc.sg/mentalwellbeingcampaign to find out how to make positive mental well-being an integral part of their workplace.

dnata Singapore helps to keep our beaches clean

Saving the environment isn't a walk in the park but it can start with a walk on the beach. Annually, there are seven billion tons of debris deposited on beaches worldwide. Seeing the devastating impact of single-use plastics and reckless waste disposal first-hand never ceases to be heart-breaking. These are health hazards for us who use the beach recreationally and an environmental hazard for the marine life that depends on it.

To help improve the coastal ecosystem and to make the beach a safer place for all to enjoy, a few volunteers from dnata Singapore got together to play their part by collecting trash along East Coast Park Beach on Friday, 29 October 2021. Not only was it a great way to end the day by getting some exercise or feeling a sense of accomplishment, but a fun team activity that helped raise awareness about plastic pollution and the importance of recycling. We can ALL make a difference one step at a time, let's leave nothing on the beach except for footprints.
